GENERAL NEWS.

Washington News.

COUNTING THE ELECTORAL VOTE.

WASHINGTON, April 17. The democratic members of the senate committee on the rules of the senate and a secret committee on counting the electoral votes held a long private meeting to day and substantially decided to recommend congress to adopt a new joint rule, providing that in the case of only one certificate of the electoral vote of a state be presented to congress, it shall not be rejected except by the affirmative vote of two houses, and that in the case of dual return, neither shall be counted unless two houses agree on one of them as a true and valid return. The proposition is substantially the same as offered by Senator Morton in the 44th congress and adopted by the senate committee, which however failed to receive action in that body in consequence of Senator Thurman having entered a motion to reconsider its passage. The former is the twenty second joint rule on the subject.

BILLS BEFORE THE HOUSE.

There are eighty five bills of a public character upon the house calendar, over five hundred upon the private calendar, and one hundred and fifty upon the public calendar in the committee of the whole.

Injustice in New York.

NEW YORK, April 17. The Tribune to day says it is difficult for the Chinese to get justice in New York, partly because their knowledge of the vernacular is limited, and partly because the average policeman of the period is very likely to arrest them if they call for help. On Thursday evening Wah Kee, an industrious and unoffending laundryman, was grossly assaulted by a Dr. Josephs, because he hesitated to deliver the latter's clothes without a check, and when he sent for a policeman he was arrested and locked up over night. Many persons in the court would have asked for the arrest of Josephs had not Justice Attebury discouraged it by expressing the opinion that, although Wah Kee's eye was black and his face purple and though he had four witnesses to the assault, his assailant would plead self-defense. So Wah Kee went home and to bed, probably thinking justice in this free country is fearfully and wonderfully made.

An Important Communication.

CHICAGO, April 17. The Inter-Ocean's Washington special says Professor Baird sent to Speaker Randall to day a communication asking an appropriation of $50,000 for the purpose of continuing the ethnologic researches among the North American Indians, which is now being prosecuted under his direction. To the secretary of the Smithsonian Institute Professor Baird states at no distant time the opportunity for recording ethnologic data of the United States will disappear, as the Indian tribes in their primitive condition are rapidly passing away, and the exhaustive researches now being prosecuted within our own territory by foreign nations and contents of aboriginal graves and mounds have been carried away almost in ship loads to foreign museums. An immense collection from the coast of California, Oregon, and Alaska has been recently transmitted to the government museum in Paris by an agent sent to us for the purpose. Another French expedition will soon be under way to the almost virgin archeological fields of Arizona and New Mexico. Prof. Baird says the retention by the country, within its confines, of its historical monuments has been considered of such moment that laws have been passed by several foreign governments prohibiting exportation of antiquities and while it may not be practicable or advisable for the United States to follow their examples, we may at least anticipate foreigners by engaging in the work ourselves and transferring the objects collected in a national museum in Washington. Unless such action be taken at an early day, it will be necessary to depend upon European museums for materials for investigating the antiquities of the United States. Accompanying the letter of Prof. Baird is a statement of Maj. Powell in charge of the bureau of ethnology Smithsonian Institute, giving a summary of the results of ethnologic researches which have been prosecuted under his direction during ten years.

Resignation of a Prominent Railroad Man.

CHICAGO, April 17. C. W. Smith, who has for many years been prominently identified with the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy R. R., as general freight agent and traffic manager, which latter position he now holds, has tendered his resignation to take effect May 1st. He has been one of the most successful of railroad managers in the west. His future intentions are not known, although it has been intimated he will be connected with Gould's roads.

The Democratic Candidate.

NEW YORK, April 17.—The Saturday Star's Washington correspondent, "A. L. R.," who recently gave the circumstantial statement of Tilden's retirement from the contest, to day publishes a column and a quarter account of the combination of railroad and other interests by Tilden and his political friends resulting in the choice of Judge Field for the democratic nominee. Field's name was first suggested to Tilden by the gentlemen referred to some four or five weeks ago. He asked time to consider the matter, and a day or two later informed Charles A. Dana of the new proposition. A confidential agent was sent out west by Dana to gather from the friends of Field, and in various other quarters, such information as was deemed necessary before finally committing the paper to the support of Field. Within a few days this agent has returned to New York and has brought with him such assurances as have satisfied all the parties, that Field is eminently worthy to be brought before the national convention as a candidate. It is probable, therefore, within a few days, and possibly then before the Syracuse convention adjourns, the name of Stephen J. Field will be openly and publicly advocated as the presidential candidate.

The same correspondent maintains with equal positiveness that Grant will decline in favor of Washburne, who is the veritable dark horse on the republican side.

Whittaker Investigation.

WEST POINT, April 17. The correspondent of the New York Times declined to give his authority for the statement that three cadets were heard saying, "Whittaker would be fixed," etc., until Monday when his counsel would be present. The court said the witness having sworn to tell the whole truth and now refusing to give only such information as is politic, no importance would attach to the news given to the press by him. The recorder states he had been unable to find any facts justifying the correspondent's story. The correspondent then protested against the court's unjust assumption that in retiring within his legal rights under legal military counsel, he was violating his duty.

Second Lieutenant Coffin testified the colored cadets were not hazed, although the whites were.

Major General Schofield testified to the facts already known regarding the previous investigation, and said that he had informed Whittaker that the result of the investigation was prejudicial to him. Whittaker made a prompt and earnest denial, and demanded a court of inquiry. Whittaker's frankness impressed the general that he could not be guilty. After the investigation, there were reports that the guilty parties were beyond West Point, and then the authorities had to look elsewhere. In the meantime, Whittaker could not rest under the imputation cast upon him, and a court of inquiry was promptly ordered. The bearing of the corps of cadets and the bearing of Whittaker impressed the general with the innocence of both, and a clue outside had also failed. The method of the investigation was adopted solely in justice to Whittaker. He knew of no other testimony which revealed how the colored cadets had been ostracised and ignored in the past.

The clerk of the quartermaster's department identified the handkerchief found as the style issued to the cadets, but the points of the necktie were different from those in his department. No necktie had been issued to Whittaker since May 26th, 1878. The witness testified that the style of handkerchief has not been for sale in Highland Falls for six months. The court adjourned till Monday.

Kearney in a Tight Place.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 17. The counsel for Kearney announce that they will apply to the supreme court for a writ of habeas corpus as the only resort left them. The supreme court is now sitting at Los Angeles, and some time will necessarily elapse before any action can be taken on any application. The superior court ordered Kearney into the house of correction. He was not present when the judgment of the court was rendered, and it is rumored that, anticipating the decision, and pending the application for habeas corpus, he has absented himself from the city.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 17. Kearney's mother this evening reported that the agitator had left the city, but only temporarily, and will be produced when the demand is made for him, which will be probably on Monday.

Germans Protesting Against Grant's Nomination.

NEW YORK, April 17. The independent republican organization issued an address to-day saying that the undersigned American citizens of German descent, adherents of the republican party, would consider the nomination of General Grant as a candidate for president, an injury deeply affecting the welfare of the country as well as the republican party.

Primaries in Ohio.

COLUMBUS, April 17. Republican primaries to elect delegates to the Franklin convention were held in wards and townships to night. The county convention only elected delegates for the state convention. Sherman and Blaine delegates were voted for. A very large vote was cast. Thirteen wards and seven townships have been heard from and Sherman carries all except one township. This will give him a majority in the county. Blaine carries one one ward in the city. All the wards have been heard from and eight townships. The delegates stand as follows: Sherman 121, Blaine 11.

FREMONT, April 17. A large republican convention to day, appointed Blaine delegates to Columbus. Resolutions were passed in favor of Blaine.

Held for a Crime.

PHILADELPHIA, April 17. Dr. Gerson has been held for trial on the charge of poisoning his wife, who recently died. A chemist's report has not yet been made of the analysis of the stomach of the wife's mother who died a short time before. Dr. F. T. Haines who visited the woman only once during her sickness and gave a certificate of death from a disease of kidneys has been held as accessory.

More Rumors About Tilden.

BOSTON, April 17.—A correspondent of the Journal, writing from St. Albans, Vermont, says he was informed, on the train between New York and Montreal by a leading democratic politician of New England, whose high standing in the counsels of the party entitle him to prominent recognition in the late democratic conference in New York, at which Mr. Tilden and General Hancock, with members of the national committee were present, that the question of Tilden's candidacy was settled at the meeting, and Tilden positively decided not to be a candidate for the nomination, and that Tilden has written a letter to be read at the Syracuse convention withdrawing his name from the field, urging as a reason his failing health and desire to promote harmony and success. General Hancock, it was stated to the Journal's informant, could not enter into any contest or fight to secure the nomination, and that he was not a candidate. The correspondent was shown telegrams and letters from leading supporters of Tilden's candidacy in New York and Connecticut, corroborating these statements.

Gold Excitement in India.

NEW YORK, April 17.—The latest English advices speak of the excitement over gold discoveries in Southern India as unabated. Some of the nugget stories remind one of the earlier days of the California mining craze. In the district of Devala, for instance, we read of pieces of gold as large as a man's hand, found in the Pondi River, and on the slope of Needle Rock Range nuggets as big as two hands could compass were found. On the Pondi river below Peershota crossing layers of gold an inch thick have been brought to light. A column might be filled with similar statements.

CHESTER, PA., April 17. The new iron steamer, Columbia, built for the Oregon Steamship company of Portland, left Roach's yard this evening for New York.

Politicians in Town.

LONDON, April 17. All the ministers are in town, also all the liberal leaders except Gladstone, who is at Hawardin, where John Bright is visiting him. Speculation is rife respecting the composition of the new ministry, but there has been no formal consultation among the liberals. The general supposition is a Gladstone premiership is inevitable unless he should refuse the office.

The Great Question in England.

NEW YORK, April 17. The Tribune's cable from London says the question of the premiership almost monopolizes the public attention. It is believed that Lord Beaconsfield intends to resign immediately upon the arrival of the Queen, whose absence the Standard censures as creating a dead lock. But nobody outside of the cabinet knows positively what decision was taken on Wednesday. The sphynx affects Beaconsfield to the last, he pleading that constitutional obligations compel him to acquaint the queen with his determination before the public, thus leaving the most favored party journals ignorant of his intentions.

Chilian Success.

WASHINGTON, April 16. The following dispatch was received at the Chilian legation this evening:

"PANAMA, April 10. Callao has been blockaded by six steamers of the Chilian navy. A great panic has arisen there and at Lima. The inhabitants are fleeing from these cities. The Peruvians have been completely defeated in Los Angeles."

TO REPUBLICANS.

HEADQUARTERS REPUBLICAN CENTRAL COMMITTEE,
DENVER, Colorado, April 6, 1880.

The members of the Republican State Central Committee are requested to meet in Denver, at the Grand Central hotel, on Thursday, April 22, 1880, at 10 o'clock a. m. A full attendance is especially desired.

JOHN L. ROUTT,
Chairman.
HENRY WARD, Secretary.

The Chicago Interior calls the Alliance the "Central Church glucose."

Brick Pomeroy was found out here very quickly. It takes many communities five and ten years to find out that he is a fraud.

W. H. Vanderbilt has $54,000,000 in government four per cents. This will give him a quarterly revenue of $510,000, a revenue of between $5000 and $6000 a day.

The News is unkind. It says of the leading man in its party: "If Tilden is elected every unmarried woman in the country will have a chance to become mistress of the White House."

Our imports are increasing amazingly. For the eight months ending March 1st they were $487,000,000. For the same time the year before they were $397,000,000. This increase is partly due to the high prices put on American manufacturers. Canadian paper, despite the duty, is now being imported in large quantities.

Representative Cox' report on the Clayton-Bulwer treaty is very valuable and interesting at this time. The only obstacle to making our foreign policy conform to the Monroe doctrine, as interpreted recently by President Hayes in his message to congress, is this treaty. The report shows that this is only technically binding on us, as it has been repeatedly violated by Great Britain. His recommendation is a good one and we trust it will prevail.

Grant's strength thus far has been shown in states solidly democratic which cannot cast their electoral votes for the republican candidate. In republican or doubtful republican states, his friends have not obtained a single Grant vote except by intrigue. Missouri, Texas, and Kentucky were nearly unanimous for Grant, while in New York and Pennsylvania he did not have a respectable majority, and if the districts were allowed to send delegates to represent them, he would not have half the strength of these two states.

General Grant is reported to have said at Cairo that:

"He was as pleased to see as they would be to know that in every state through which he had passed, the decorations and speeches were the same as here. The stars and stripes were floating. Most of the speakers were ex-confederates and their speeches represent devotion to the flag for which we fought, which is all we ever asked of them. If we should hereafter be assailed by a foreign power they would unite with us as one people. He believed them sincere and hoped they expressed the sentiments of the great majority, united as one people, united as rivals in building up our several states for the whole union."

This is good doctrine and we are very anxious that those friends of General Grant's who are urging that Grant should be nominated by the republican party because there is likely to be a second rebellion and hence there is a need of a strong man, should realize that Grant thinks the reasons they are giving for his nomination are absurd.

The Tribune hopes that the unit rule and instructions to delegates will never be heard of after this year. Sorry that you cannot be accommodated, neighbor. So long as the people have a preference for a certain candidate they will be free to express it and insist on being properly represented by their agents. Denver Republican.

The last paragraph expresses the objection to the unit rule. It is because that it enables politicians to misrepresent the people that we object to it. Pennsylvania sends 58 delegates which are instructed to vote as a unit for Grant, by a republican state convention. This was a usurpation of power. The state convention properly could only instruct the four delegates at large which represent the state. The other 54 delegates represent the 27 congressional districts of Pennsylvania. Each district should have had the right to select two delegates to represent them in the national convention as they undoubtedly have the right to choose their own congressmen. But the unit rule has usurped the privileges of the people in more than half the congressional districts of Pennsylvania, and will cause them to be misrepresented at Chicago.

The editor of the Denver Times may be well informed about southern politics on account of his residence in North Carolina, but his article of Friday on "Massachusetts Politics" shows remarkable ignorance about politics in New England. The half column on this subject we perused carefully, and we were unable to find a single accurate statement of fact, or a sensible opinion founded on any actual facts. Most of the article was devoted to the expression of opinions rather than facts and hence it is difficult to controvert it. But when it contains a statement of fact, as for instance, that President Seelye, of Amherst, voted for Tilden, it is wrong. Had the writer of that article been in the slightest degree familiar with Massachusetts politics, he could not have written such an absurd article.

LITERARY NOTES.

Received from the Publishers and Condensed from Exchanges.

William Black's new novel is called "Sunrise."

G. P. Putnam's Sons have an excellent success with their "Knickerbocker Novels."

Henry Holt & Co. will publish "Cavendish on Whist" in the Leisure Hour Series.

Mr. Ruskin has so far overcome his dislike to everything and everybody American as to express approbation of Walt Whitman's "Leaves of Grass."

Farrar's "Life of Christ" has been issued by E. P. Dutton & Co. in a very attractive form for $1. Two hundred thousand copies of this work have already been sold in this country and England.

D. Appleton & Co. have nearly ready for publication "The Life and Writings of Thomas Henry Buckle," by Alfred Henry Huth, a long notice of which, from the Fortnightly Review, appears in the April number of Appleton's Journal.

Messrs. Dodd, Mead & Co. are having a great demand for their low-priced "Student's Edition" of Cruden's Concordance. Advance orders have been received for more than the whole of the thirteenth thousand, for which the paper is not yet ready.

The announcement that Mr. Henry James, jr., is at work on a new novel, which is to begin as a serial before spring ends, and simultaneously on both sides of the Atlantic, arouses curiosity as to whether the American young girl in Europe will appear in it.

G. P. Putnam's Sons will publish immediately "William Ellery Channing: His Opinions; Genius and Character," by Henry W. Bellows, D. D. The second volume in the Transatlantic series, will be a new edition of Dingelstedt's charming novel "The Amazon," translated by Professor James Morgan Hart, which has been for many years out of print.

The new issue of Messrs. A. S. Barnes & Co.'s "Atlas Series" has the title of "Theological Unrest." It contains Mr. J. A. Froude's essay on "Science and Theology, Ancient and Modern;" a reply from Professor Tait, of Edinburgh, entitled, "Does Humanity Require a New Revelation?" and a review, by the Rev. Dr. E. A. Washburn, of Dr. Draper's "Conflict Between Science and Religion."

It is a pleasure to have as Number 49 of Appletons' New Handy-Volume Series, "A Stroke of Diplomacy," by Victor Cherbuliez, the delightful novelette which appeared in Appletons' Journal. In this little work Cherbuliez has shown the same admirable construction as in his larger romances; and the delicately humorous way in which the old diplomatist plays his cards, makes the story most amusing.

Harper & Brothers will add to the Hildreth, recently and the fine series of other standard histories previously published, Gibbon's "Rome," somewhat later in the spring, and they have also in press Dr. Henry M. Dexter's magnum opus, "The Congregationalism of the Last Three Hundred Years," as seen in its literature, with his great bibliography of the subject as an appendix; and, further along, a "Cyclopædia of American History," by Benson J. Lossing.

A once-famous book is recalled to mind by the official notice from the librarian of congress that "Susan Warner, of New York, has deposited in this office the title of a book, the title or description of which is in the following words, to wit: 'Queechy,' by Elizabeth Witherell, author of the 'Wide, Wide World,' the right whereof she claims as author." This is an application for a renewal of copyright for fourteen years from April 12, when the first term of twenty-eight years will have expired.

Judge Lawrence, of the New-York Supreme Court, has refused the application of the Messrs. Irving and G. P. Putnam's Sons to restrain another publishing house from issuing a volume of the writings of Washington Irving and from using the title "Irving's Works." It is held that the copyright on the works in question expired years ago and the plaintiffs have no exclusive rights, the common law right having been divested by the statutory copyright, and further, that the claim to the exclusive use of the title "Irving's Works" as a trade-mark cannot be maintained.

RELIGIOUS NOTES.

According to Dr. Christlieb, 60,000 pagans passed over to Christianity in 1878.

There are, it is said, 150,000 German Protestants in Brazil, the majority Lutherans.

In the seven Congregational theological seminaries of the United States there are 298 students.

The supreme court of Illinois has decided that the reading of the scriptures in the public schools may be enforced.

The Danielites, members of the latest English sect, are strict vegetarians, and also abstainers from beer, wines and spirits, snuff and tobacco.

Prof. James Dascomb, for forty-five years professor in chemistry at Oberlin College, who died at Cincinnati, April 1, was greatly respected for learning and for piety.

Statistics show that there are 158,040 members of religious orders in France—127,753 women and 30,287 men—the immense majority belonging to authorized orders.

At the Brompton Oratory a few days ago thirteen Ritualists, five of them exclergymen, were received into the Catholic church. Nine of the same group await reception.

An appeal to the members of the Protestant Episcopal church throughout the country for the sum of $280,000 to endow the general theological seminary in New York has been issued.

At a recent meeting of M. Loyson's congregation at Paris something over 4,000 francs was subscribed toward paying off the debt of 8,700 francs incurred by "Father Hyacinthe" in carrying on his religious enterprise.

Five thousand strips of whalebone tipped with cobbler's wax were found not long ago at the headquarters of a band of French thieves who have long been making a successful specialty of robbing the poor boxes in the churches.

The Stewart cathedral at Garden City is to be dedicated by Bishop Littlejohn during this month, and there is general interest to know whether the body of the dead merchant will be deposited at that time in the $90,000 crypt prepared for its reception.

The returning officers for several of the metropolitan constituencies in England changed the polling day in their boroughs from April 2 to April 1, so as to enable the Jewish voters to vote without infringing any of the regulations with regard to the observance of the Passover.

The total value of church property in the country is placed at $500,000,000, and it is estimated that its value in 1900 will reach $3,000,000,000, one third more than the national debt. The ecclesiastical property in New York exempt from taxation is valued at $110,000,000.

The old family Bible which belonged to "Mary, the mother of Washington," bound in a cover of cloth woven by her own hands, is in the possession of a branch of the Washington family in Virginia. In its register is a record of the birth of George Washington, Feb. 22, 1732.

It is a little more than fifty years since Dr. Lyman Beecher and Dr. William Ellery Channing were in the height of their pulpit power and pulpit controversies; one a leader of the rational element among the orthodox; the other a leader of the spiritual element among the Unitarians.

A missionary at Mosul relates of an Armenian named John that he was hired by some persecuting Armenians to whip a certain watchmaker. The latter upon receiving the first blow quietly replied, "May God bless you." This unexpected answer was effectual. "For," said John, "I could not strike again," and at night I said to him, "Instead of my eating you, you will eat me." It was soon said of John, "Behold he prayeth." The power of a soft answer was well illustrated.

Taxation of church property is a public question in France as well as in New York. M. Brisson, one of the most influential radical members of the French chamber, has proposed that all the religious associations in France should be made amenable to the common law in the matter of taxation. He directs special attention to the real property belonging to departments, to congregations, and other corporate bodies. These lands and buildings never pass from one hand to another, and are seldom, if ever, sold; the consequence is that they pay no mutation or legacy duty. Their proprietors never die. With private property the case is different, for it changes hands on an average every twenty years, and is a constant source of revenue.

Mission ships, as the Morning Star, the Southern Cross and many others, have for twenty or thirty years been plying among the Pacific islands on embassies of redemption, but they were too slow for present rapid movements, and small steamships are now being employed. One of these is the Ellengowan, owned by the London Missionary Society, and plying among the South Sea Islands. It is impossible, says the Foreign Missionary, to overestimate the value of such a vessel with its greater speed and independence of winds and tides and its much more reliable defense against the attacks of hostile natives. It is in no danger of being overpowered while lying becalmed in some bay or river. In penetrating the river channels of New Zealand, for instance, to the distance of 170 miles, the Ellengowan, with her bold aspect, roaring funnel, piercing whistle and breath of fire and smoke, was respected by a savage minds where a mere boat's crew might have been attacked and destroyed. Such also is the Henry Venn, which plies up and down the Niger on errands of salvation; and so, if Gospel work is losing the poetry of wings, it is gaining the resistless power and speed of fire and steam.

Byron's Statue in Piccadilly.

A statue in Hamilton-place is the reparation which posterity offers Byron for the exclusion of his bust from Westminster Abbey. In one sense the site is eminently appropriate. The spot now selected is understood to have been that which the prime minister indicated to the queen as the most suitable for the purpose; its suitability will not be diminished because its immediate neighborhood contains certain memorials of contrast, and even of antagonism, to the genius of Byron. Apsley house and statue of Achilles are not a stone throw off, while even the relentless animosity with which the poet attacked the great captain of his day might be sufficiently gratified by the hideous effigy of the Duke of Wellington on horseback at Hyde Park corner. Most of what may be called Byron's London lies within a narrow radius of the place where the statue will stand. In the days when he was new to authorship and fame he would look in at Mr. Murray's shop, then in Fleet street, and fresh from his fencing lessons at Angelo's or his pugilistic bouts with Jackson, would playfully lunge with his cane at what he called the "spruce books" of the publisher as they lay on their shelves. As a boy, when the Thames was a tolerable limpid stream, he had swum from Lambeth, past Westminster and Blackfriars, to London Bridge; and again, earlier yet, as a mere child, had wandered in Dulwich wood, then a great resort of gypsies, "holding converse," as he has said himself, with motley groups of the vagabond classes. But the social aspects of London which Byron knew and enjoyed in his manhood were those of that quarter of the town which is bounded by Charing Cross on the east and Hyde Park corner on the west. He lived for some time at No. 8 St. James' street, in the house which now has as its occupant Mr. Abraham Hayward, the most graphic social chronicler of that time in which Byron's lot was cast. Before this his favorite hotel was Durant's. When Sir Walter Scott came to London Byron invited him to dinner at Long's; and for many years Stephen's in Bond street was one of his regular haunts.

For Byron, during the times he was in London, was above all things a man about town. He was famous, and he was therefore a figure in literary as well as in general society. As he has written of himself, "I liked the dandies, and though I gave up the business early, I had always a tinge of dandyism about me. I knew them (the dandies) all, more or less; and they made me a member of Watier's, being, I take it, the only literary man, except two others, both men of the world, Moore and Spencer, in it." In addition to Watier's, Byron belonged to the Alfred which only became extinct some five-and-twenty years ago—to the Cocoa Tree, to the Union, to the Owls, a society, nominally at least, revived within the memory of the present generation to the Harrow Club, and to several smaller institutions. Of the Alfred he has told us characteristically that "it was pleasant, a little too sober and literary, and bored with Sotheby and Sir Francis D'Ivernois; but one met Peel and Ward and Valentia, and many other pleasant or known people; and it was upon the whole a decent resource on a rainy day, on a dearth of parties or parliament, or in an empty season." Within ten minute's walk of Hamilton place was the shooting gallery, Manton's, in Davies street, which he used to frequent during the "year of revelry," 1814, backing himself to hit a wafer against such experts with the pistol as Lords Yarmouth, Pollington, Mountjoy, Wallscourt, Blandford, Captain Burges, and "Jack" Bouverie. Allusions to these achievements abound in the poet's diary, and may be found both in "Childe Harold" and "Don Juan." Like other gentlemen of fashion of the period, Byron was regularly to be met with in Hyde Park, "where the fashionable fair can form a slight acquaintance with the air." Between the Hyde Park that Byron sung and the Hyde Park that at the present moment, with a general election being held throughout the United Kingdom, stands desolate and forlorn, there is scarcely any resemblance. The entire landscape is changed; the transcendent bucks, the appalling exquisitas, the men who did nothing but lounge languidly through life, have disappeared. Gone, too, is that spirit of exclusiveness which then dominated fine society, and which, in virtue of an unwritten but well understood law, banished the multitude, and even the well to do middle classes, from the Row and Lady's Mile.

Marrying Bishops.

Bishop Fraser—"Baby" Fraser as he used to be called at the university and as he continued to be called all through his life—is the third bishop who has taken a wife within the past few years, and thus exposed himself to all the second hand satire of Sydney Smith: "How can a bishop marry? How can he flirt? The most he can say is, 'I will see you in the vestry after service.'" The bishop of Exeter was the first to break the ice and to plunge into matrimony, and still more recently the Bishop of Lichfield has been married during the occupancy of his see. But these cases are very rare; and when a few years ago one of the most distinguished bishops in East Anglia, eminent for his learning, made up his mind to take a wife he resigned his see and quietly retired to a cottage at Clapham, where he spent the rest of his days with his books and his wife, and spent them apparently very pleasantly. The Episcopal bench now numbers only two bachelors, the bishop of Durham (Dr. Lightfoot), and the Bishop of Ely (Dr. Woodford), and I suspect neither of them is a marrying man; for when an old friend a few years ago told one of them that he ought to be married, he asked, "Why?" "Because," was the answer, "St. Paul says a bishop should be the husband of one wife." "Yes," was the bishop's retort, "the husband of one only one."

Poor Epam.

A Grecian bandit, having captured an unfortunate traveller, sends word to the traveller's wife that the captive's ransom is fixed at 1,000 drachmas. If it is not paid on the 15th his nose is to be cut off; on the 16th off will come one ear; on the 17th another; on the 18th his lips, and if the money does not come to hand by the 19th the prisoner will be killed.

The unhappy woman goes to work to raise the money, but the process of abduction is ... difficult. By the 15th she has only obtained 300 drachmas, by the 16th 400, by the 17th 600, and it is the night of the 18th when the whole sum of 1,000 has been put together.

Then she says with a bitter burst of tears to her sympathizing sister, "Poor Epaminondas! He never was particularly handsome, and now with his nose, ears and lips cut off he must look like a regular guy. I guess I'll use this money towards buying me my mourning and a new trousseau. I look well in black. Besides, it would be a mercy to Epam to put him out of his sufferings."—Paris Wit.

Home, Sweet Home.

At 11 o'clock the other night a Detroit policeman came upon a man pounding vigorously on the door of a dwelling house, and he asked what he wanted there. The pounder was pretty well set up. He descended the steps, went close up to the officer and softly whispered in his ear:

"It's my—my abode, and I w-want to get in."

"But why don't you call out?" asked the blue-coat.

"B-because I don't want to g-give myself away. I want to get into the house b-before the jawing commenses. I want my wife to think its somebody else."

"Well, go ahead, but don't arouse the neighbors."

The officer sauntered on, but in about ten minutes he encountered the tipsy citizen on the other side of the block. The man was thoroughly drenched with cold water, and had lost his hat.

"Hello! didn't you get in?"

"N-not quite."

"Couldn't awaken your wife, eh?"

"The t-trouble was," whispered the man, as a big shiver creeped over him, "the t-trouble was that she was awake all the t-time."

"And she deluged you from a second-story window?"

"I'm not 'zactly clear as to whether it was a thunder shower or only a pitcher of w-water, and I thought I'd hunt you up and ask you if th thunder showers ever come in the night, and if lightning ever knocks a p-perfect gentleman off his own doorsteps?"

Chinese Greenbacker.

A representative of the Philadelphia Telegraph has had a conversation with Wah Lee at his place on Ninth street, near Race, where he found six of the almond eyed, industriously engaged in laundering. The conversation was in "pigeon" English, in which Lee was exceedingly fluent.

"Yes," said he, "over fifty Chinamen thum here, some wash like me, some in flactoly (factory) some in chichen; allee samee like women."

"Did I understand you are going to be naturalized" a word that somewhat dazed the Mongolian until its meaning with much labor was explained to him—"and become American citizens."

"Cliillect, Chinaman make heep money, puttee in house, vote at lection, holdee ticket an' winlybook allee samee as othel men. No Chinaman when ne glittee papel (paper) but Melican allee time." And he thumped his breast proudly.

"Of course you will identify yourself with one of the three parties—republican, democratic or greenback."

He studied a moment.

"Yes; will dientlify wid gleenblack; gleenblack help Chinaman to build house an' puttee up shop. No lublican an' dlemelclat fol me, evly time gleenblack. You sendee gleenblack man to me, I votee him ticket evely tlime."

The Fastest Locomotive.

What is believed to be the fastest locomotive in the country is shortly to be placed on the Bound Brook line between Philadelphia and New York. It is is expected to be able to make the distance at a uniform speed of a mile a minute. The engine differs from all others in one material point. Instead of there being two sets of driving wheels there is but one pair, and these are 6½ feet in diameter, which is from to 1 to 1½ feet larger than those of the fastest passenger locomotives of the day. The object sought to be attained by dispensing with the double pair of drivers and the use of but one is to do away with the connecting rod that rests upon both wheels on each side. In the running of fast trains the vibration has been so great that it frequently happens this rod snaps, demolishes the cabin and oftentimes throws the train from the track. On the new locomotive there is no fear of anything of this sort, because the only rod is that which extends from the cylinder box to the one pair of wheels. The weight of the engine is about eighty-four thousand pounds, and the water tank has a capacity of over four thousand gallons.

A Boston paper thinks there ought to be a law in this country to compel every girl who is engaged to wear a red bow at her throat. That wouldn't do a bit of good. Every girl would wear one.

"Select List"

Geo. P. Rowell & Co's Select List of Local Newspapers.

Many persons suppose this list to be composed of CHEAP, low-priced newspapers. The fact is quite otherwise. The catalogue states exactly what the papers are. When the name of a paper is printed in FULL FACE TYPE it is in every instance the BEST. When printed in CAPITALS it is the ONLY paper in the place. The list gives the population of every town and the circulation of every paper. IT IS NOT A CO OPERATIVE LIST. IT IS NOT A CHEAP LIST. At the foot of the catalogue for each state the important towns which are not covered by the lists are enumerated. IT IS AN HONEST LIST.

An old advertiser writes: "I prefer the LOCAL LIST for the reason that, while but few persons in any particular town subscribe for a class-medium or large city weekly, nine out of ten subscribe for their local paper, and the tenth one borrows it from his neighbor."

An advertiser, who spends upwards of $5,000 a year, and who invested less than $250 of it in this list, writes: "Your Select Local List paid me better last year THAN ALL THE OTHER ADVERTISING I DID."

The rates charged for advertising are barely one-fifth the publishers' schedule. The price for single states ranges from $2 to $80. The price for one inch one month in the entire list is $650. The regular rates of the papers for the same space and time are $3,083.16. The list includes 977 newspapers, of which 193 are issued DAILY and 784 WEEKLY. They are located in 807 different cities and towns, of which 28 are state capitals, 371 places of over 5,000 population, and 485 county seats.

GEO. P. ROWELL & CO conduct an agency for the reception of advertisements for American newspapers. The most complete establishment of the kind in the world.

Eight thousand newspapers are kept regularly on file open to the inspection of customers.

Every advertisement is taken at the home price of the paper, without any additional charge of commission.

An advertiser in dealing with the agency, is saved trouble and correspondence, making one contract instead of a dozen, a hundred or a thousand.

A book of 120 pages, containing lists of best papers, largest circulations, religious, agricultural, class, political, daily and country papers, and all publications which are especially valuable to advertisers, with some information about prices, is sent to any address on receipt of ten cents.

Persons at a distance wishing to make contracts for advertising in any town, city, county, state or territory of the United States, or any portion of the Dominion of Canada, may send a concise statement of what they want, together with a copy of the ADVERTISEMENT they desire inserted, and will receive, by return mail, an estimate of the cost.

For such information and estimate there is no charge.

Orders are taken for a single paper as well as for a list; for a single dollar as readily as for a larger sum.

Geo. P. Rowell & Co. also publish the American Newspaper Directory (price $5), in which will be found a complete list of all American newspapers, and a Gazetteer of the towns in which they are issued.

PICTORIAL DEFINITIONS.

For the great aid rendered by pictures in defining: look at the pictures under the following words in Webster, each illustrating and defining the number of words and terms named:

Beef, page 120	15	Moldings, p. 851	10
Boiler, p. 148	17	Phrenology, 985	37
Castle, p. 200	24	Ravelin, p. 1089	14
Column, p. 280	26	Ships, p. 1164, 1219	110
Eye, p. 555	11	Steam Engine	20
Horse, p. 640	45	Timbers, p. 1385	14

Making 343 words and terms defined by the pictures under above 12 words in Webster's Unabridged, far better than could be done by any definition given in words.

Is there any better aid than Webster to help a family to become intelligent?
